

BETWEEN THE STORY AND THE WORLD

Better Interactive Worldbuilding

Ben Schneider (he/him)

Narrascope 2024

world-building noun

world-build·ing 'wɜrl(d)-'bil-dɪŋ

variants or less commonly world building or worldbuilding

: the creation of a fictional world (especially within the science fiction and fantasy genres) that is believable and consistent within the context of the story

Merriam-Webster.com

*Worked for my 8th grade book report.
Why not my Narrascope talk?*

WORLDBUILDING

Any comprehensive, coherently thought-out setting

AKA IP (Intellectual Property)

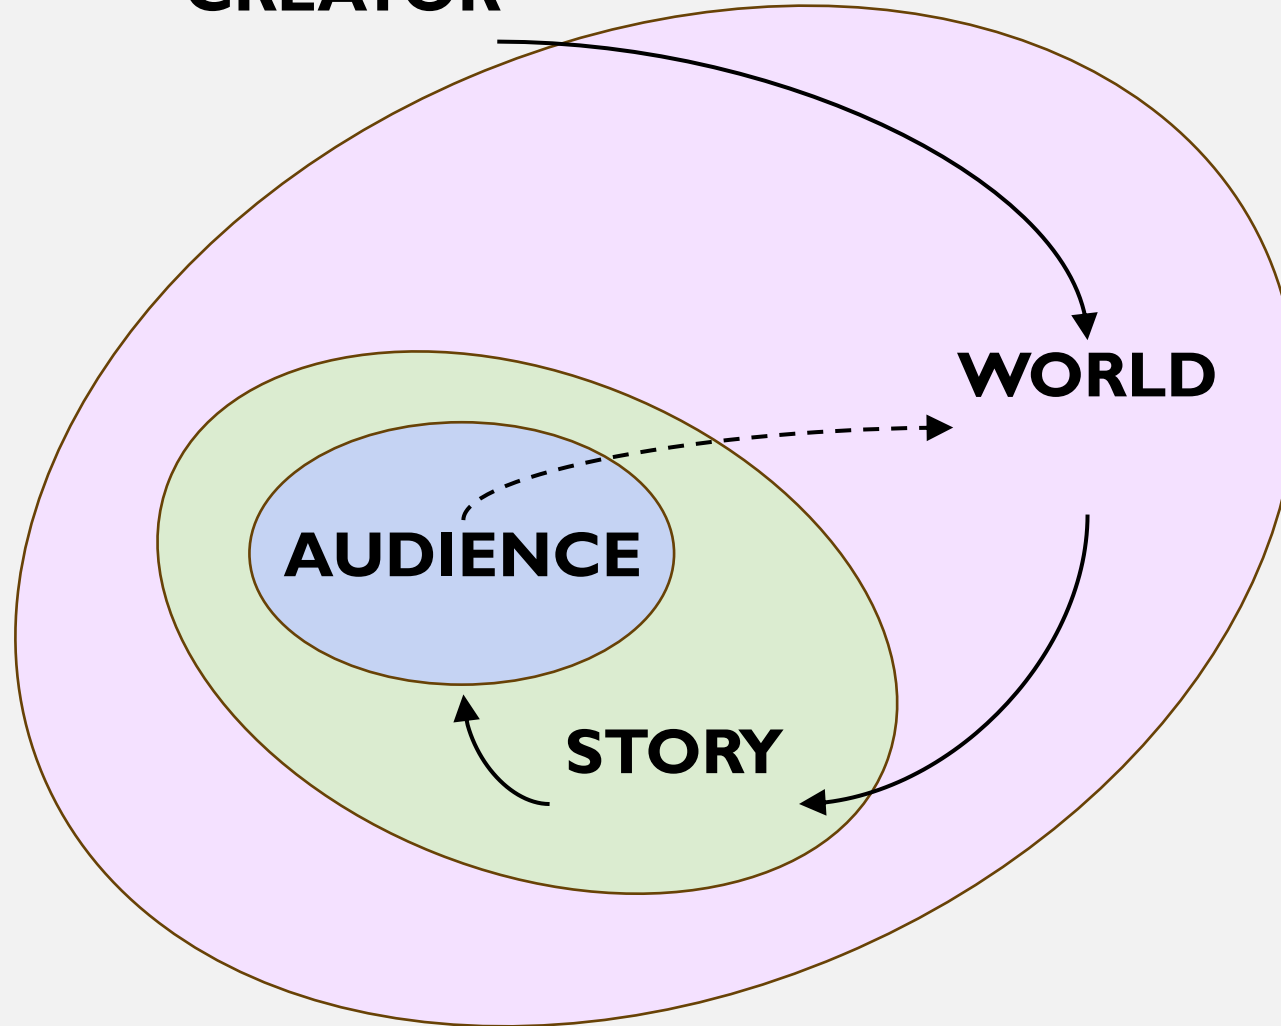

... basically “Worldbuilding Under Capitalism”

Realistic or far-flung, big or small, genre or not*

* But to be fair: especially good with genre0

Lesson 1

WHAT IS BEST IN WORLDBUILDING?

The best worlds capture the imagination and are great places to tell stories in.

Hallmarks:

- Promise of Transport
- Rife with Adventure
- Welcoming and Accessible

Hold on, I'll explain

PROMISE OF TRANSPORT

- Transport: aka immersed
- Promise: that it will be sustained
- See also:
 - Suspension of Disbelief
 - The Magic Circle
 - “Living, breathing worlds”
 - Yeah yeah immersion
- Promise as important as Transport!

Beam us up

RIFE WITH ADVENTURE

- ~~Living, breathing, boring~~
- Adventure:
 - Here meaning narrative interest, potential
 - Via instability, injustice, aspiration
- Rife:
 - Varied and spread out
 - Non-monolithic
 - Ideally, wheels within wheels
 - (Also just a word I like)

Full of story hooks

WELCOMING AND ACCESSIBLE

- Accessible
 - Worlds need a way in
 - AKA entry point(s)
 - Inclusivity starts here!
- Welcoming
 - Once you're in
 - Familiar beginnings
 - Wondrous destinations

Looks safe out there

Go from the credible to the incredible

The best worlds capture the imagination and are great places to tell stories in.

Hallmarks of great worldbuilding:

Promise of Transport

Rife With Adventure

Welcoming and Accessible

Living, breathing worlds

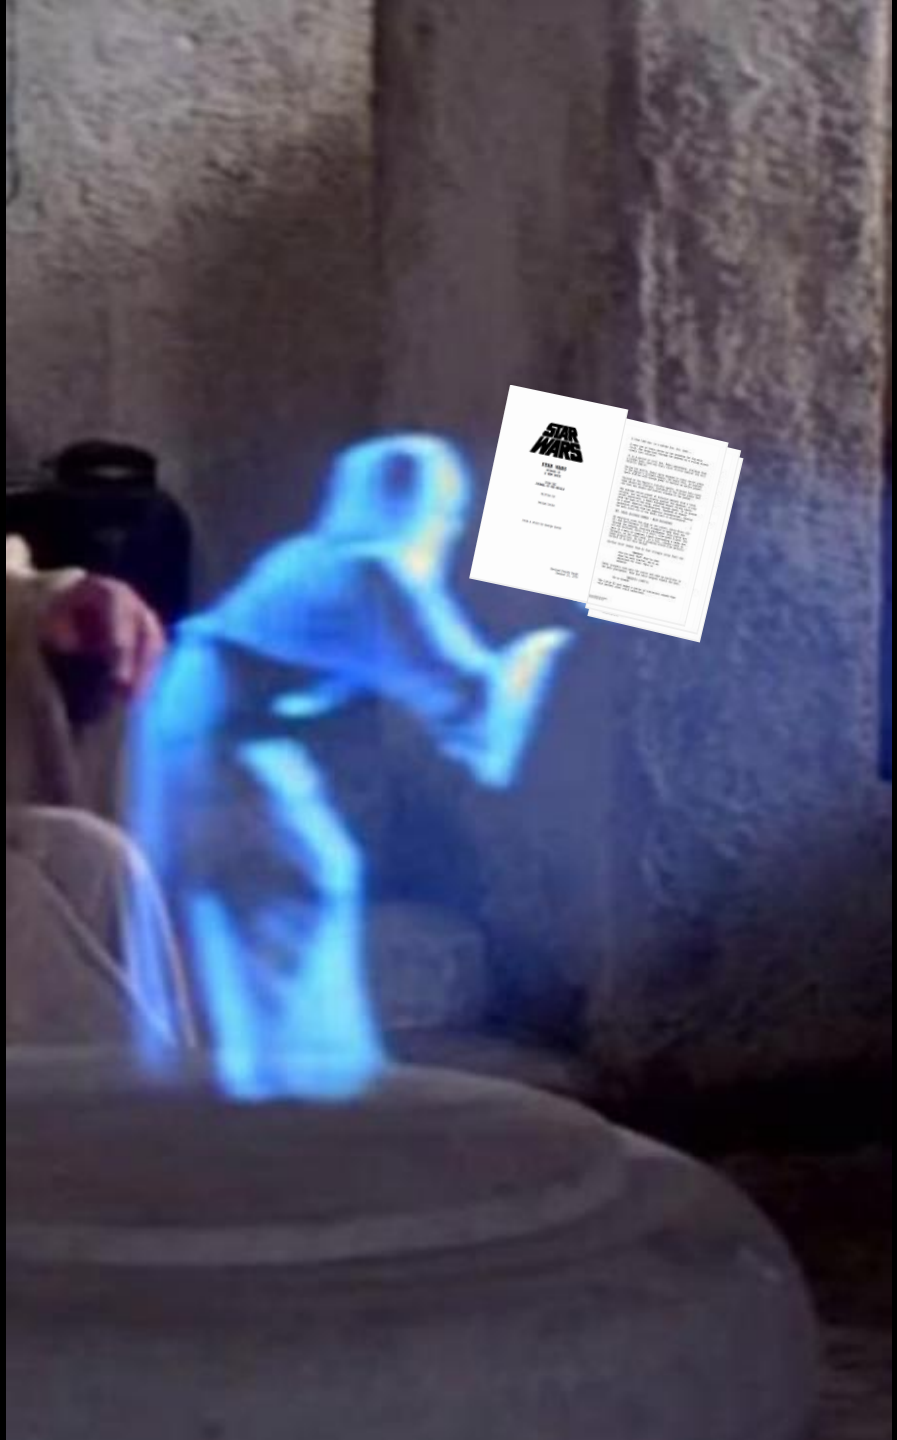

Instability and varied story hooks

Familiarity and inclusive entry points

WHOA.
COOL.

THE PARADOX OF IMMEDIACY

- Immediacy leads immersion...
- Immersion leads transport...
- Transport leads worlds.

WORLDBUILDING

Concept art by my friend, the amazing Sean Andrew Murray

A photograph of a stone arch bridge spanning a river. The bridge features several large, rounded arches supported by stone piers. The water is a murky green color. The banks are lined with lush green trees and bushes. In the foreground on the right, there are purple flowers. A handwritten note in black ink is superimposed on the image, pointing to the bridge structure.

SEPARATE WORLDBUILDING FROM STORY

- Separate worldbuilding from plot construction
- Worldbuilding early!
(plus premise and other really big moments)
- Plot outline later

- The practical: team communication, schedule
- Protects larger project from writing process

SEPARATE WORLDBUILDING FROM STORY

Philip Pullman The Path Through the Wood (How Stories Work)

- World = forest
- Story = path
- Totality of possible paths = story phase space
- Linear storytelling: “stick to the path!”
- Interactive storytelling: “that wolf looks like good XP”

The Lord of the Rings Online

Lesson 4

WORLD FIRST...
AND FOREMOST

Every new region, a new lore doc:

- Maps
- History
- Relation to major LOTR themes and characters
- Invented characters, goings-on, issues

Worldbuilding :cheff_kiss:

Lore doc, rated:

- ✓ Worldbuilding first, story later
- ✓ Promise of Transport (we thought this all through)
- ✓ Rife with Adventure (story hooks great and small)
- ✓ Welcoming & Accessible (why our players care, how they get there)
- ✓ Iceberg problem: title, premise, theme

Check, check, check, check, and check

A QUICK REVIEW

Great Worldbuilding:

Captures the imagination and affords great story

Accessible and Welcoming: inclusive and familiar entry points

Promise of Transport: Reliable magic circle

Rife with Adventure: Multifarious narrative veins

The Iceberg Problem: understand the world through a fragment

Worldbuild early, plot later

In interactive media, the player comes between the story and the world

2023 GDC Talk: “The Secret Lives of NPCs”
Story structure like braided hair
Loose strands + gather points

NON-PLOT NARRATIVE TOOLBOX

- Diary entries
- Maps, Diagrams, Trees
- Interactive conversations
- Interactivity, NPC behavior, and other gameplay
- Scheduling and other autonomous NPC behavior
- Environmental text and audio: radio, graffiti, screens...
- Collectibles
- Choices to define self & relationships

IN SUMMARY:

Build amazing worlds

So your stories flow out of them

And those who play them are empowered, immersed, and fulfilled
